A majority of the laborers here have, during the prosperous period of the last four years, saved some money, and will be able to live through the coming winter without assistance, but there are many who will need assistance. The laboring classes here remember the promises made by Democratic speakers during the last campaign of better wages and cheaper necessities, and are not slow in reminding them of their promises.

"BLACK BOY" PERFORATED.

Shot Through the Lungs and Legs in Row Among Railroad Hands. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

BEDFORD, Ind., Aug. 6.-A shooting affray occurred among the men employed in the construction of the Cincinnati & Bedford railroad yesterday, in which one of the men, called "Black Boy," was shot through both lungs and through both thighs from behind. Although in very critical condition he was alive at last accounts. Another of the gang was shot through one thigh, and his injuries, though quite serious, are not fatal. The difficulty, it is alleged, arose from some old feud. "Black Boy" commenced firing into the gang, which was at the time working in a cut near this city. This so infuriated the men that they pursued him, and after being captured he was severely dealt with. It is claimed a similar incident occurred in the same camp about a week ago; however, it managed to escape public attention.

Seymour's Financial Soundness. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

SEYMOUR, Ind., Aug. 6. - The bonds which were issued by the City Council for the construction of the new sewer to White river were sold to home people last Friday at a premium. The financial stringency of the money market has decreased the volume of business with the merchants, but not a solitary failure has occurred. The factories are all running full time and with their full quota of men. The banks are in good condition, although a few weeks ago it was rumored about that one of them would close at a certain hour on account of lack of ready cash. The story proved talse. as the bank had made preparation to withstand any run which could be made on it. The banks are now supplied with more ready money than for years. The citizens have confidence in them and deposit their money instead of withd ving it. Not a business failure has occur. d for a number of years, which shows that the merchants have been keeping near the

BASEBALL TRAIN WRECKED.

Three Men Killed and the Chicago Ball Players Badly Injured.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 6 .- Train No. 9 on the Lake Shore road left here last night for Chicago on time. The train was composed of three coaches, three baggage cars and five sleeping cars. It left Fremont, O., ten minutes late, and was running at a high rate of speed for Toledo. When the train was about ten miles out of Fremont, at a small station called Lindsey the sleeping cars left the track and crashed into a freight train that was waiting on a siding for the passenger train to pass. The first part of the train got by in safety, but the sleeping cars rolled over the ties a distance, finally swerved from their course and hit the engine of the freight train with tremendons force. The noise of the collision aroused the people in the little town, and they soon surrounded the wreck to aid the unfortunate passengers, whose groans could be heard amid the noise of escaping steam by the destruction of the locomotive. The sleeping cars were practically reduced to kindling wood, and that any one escaped is a wonder. The following persons were killed outright:

E. LAFFERTY, engineer of the freight train, CHARLES SPAINE, brakeman on the freight train, Clayville, N. Y. - ROBER (SON, porter on the sleeping car Buffalo, residence unknown.

The following were seriously injured: PROF. B. H. EMER ON. of Gloucester, Mass.; will die. - PELLMON, porter of the sleeping car Orinoco; will die, residence unknown. J. B. Hamilton, Pittsburg, Pa., injured inter-BRUNG KNIFFLER, Cleveland, injured about the Club, badly out about the head. Two of the more seriously injured were taken to Toledo and placed in the hospital. Telegrams were at once sent to Frement for medical aid, and a coach left that city within half an hour bearing physicians to the scene of the disaster. In the meantime the train crew, aided by the citizens of the little town, began to remove the debris and ruins that covered the track. Underneath the wreckage could be seen the victims of the accident, and the groans of the more seriously hurt were pitiful. Here and there an arm or a leg protruded, and little pools of blood, that cozed from underneath the shattered timbers, told the sad tale of suffering. Many people were buried in the wreck and were not seriously injured. Their burts consisted principally of bruises and scratches, and it was not a hard task to free them from the heavy beams that held them to the earth. They were taken care of by the town physicians, and were ready to resume their journey by the time the train started on its way again to Toledo. Perhaps lifteen or twenty were more or less hurt in that way whose names were not given to the local authorities. Deeper in the wreck were the dead and the more seriously hurt. The three who were killed ontright by the collision were not removed from the rains until 6 o'clock this morning. They were buried under the engine, and it was impossible to do anything to aid them until a wrecking train had arrived from Norwalk a near-by station. Professor Emerson and the colored porter, Pellmon, were extricated after a long struggle with the heavy iron braces and timbers of the sleeping car, and they were at once taken to houses in the village. Professor Emerson's case was hopeless from the start, his chest being crushed beyond possibility of recovery, To-night he is unconscious, and Pellmon is in the same condition, with no prospect of living. The members of the Chicago Baseball Club were in the Cleveland sleeper, which was the last on the train and to that fact they owe much of their immunity from ance of the journey. The last of the debris was not removed from the track until this forenoon. It is now clear and trains are running as usual. A special train left Toledo soon after the report of the accident with the Lake Shore officials on board to make thorough examination of the track and ascertain what caused the wreck. The theory given is that the rails spread and let the heavy sleeping cars through to the ties. The rest of the train passed the spot in safety, but the sleepers were well filled with people bound to the world's fair, and the added weight was too much for the bad spot in the track. The freight engine was totally demolished and rolled over on its side from the force of the collision.

WENT THROUGH THE BRIDGE.

Collision Over Vermillion River Between Two Freight Trains. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 6 .- Early this morning a disastrous collision occurred here on the Peoria division of the Big Four railroad. Freight train No. left Oakwook, a small station ten miles west of Danville, on time. Ten minutes later it was followed by freight train No. 44. When entering the Danville yards train No. 42 broke in two, four cars from the caboose. It being a heavy grade the loose section of the train started backwards and ran half a mile, until it reached the three-span iron bridge over the north fork of Vermillion river before it could be stopped. Conductor Conley started to flag train No. 44, back but before he was fairly the bridge be saw the train coming around the sharp curve, not a train's length away. The engine of the second train was No. 582. collision was unavoidable, after reversing Daniel O'Connor, engineer, seeing that a his engine, jumped before the bridge was reached. He landed in a barb-wire fence after spiritual truth. and was severely scratched, but received no serious injury.

Fireman Frank Flannegan was shoveling coal, and did not have time to save himself. The shock of the collision threw him clear off the wreck, and he fell -ixty-three feet into the river. Strange to say, he was not seriously burt.

The collision occurred over a stone pier and the shock knocked that end of the main span off the pier into the river and also broke off and doubled up half of the west span of the bridge. The engine and all of the twenty-seven cars of Train 44, and the four cars of Train 42 went down in the gap. smashing most of the cars into splinters. Brakeman Stone, of train No. 44, bas not been accounted for, and is supposed to be buried in the wreck. Conductor Grow was pulled out of his caboose. His foot is smashed and he has some internal injuries. A brick mason named Charles Jackson, who was beating his way on the train was also seriously injured. He claims that he jumped and saved himself. and that there were seventeen others in the car with him and were all killed. The car as loaded with grain, and no trace as ye has been found of his companions. Although his story may be true it is not generally credited. The crash of the falling bridge and cars was heard for a distance of half a mile. Passengers are being transferred here by livery teams.

Indianapolis Men in the Wreck, Several of the injured men in the Danville wreck resided in Indianapolis. The wreck was a disastrous one, and the escape of fireman Frank Flannigan, who formerly lived in this city, was one of the most remarkable ! from New York.

on record. Daniel O'Connor, of this city, also had a narrow escape, for he jumped from the ill-fated train just as it was entering the bridge that gave way. Conductor Gow, who lives at the corner of Belmont avenue and Vermont street, went down in the wreck, and last night his wife heard that he was dangerously hurt. He is in a hospital at Danville, and his wife left last night to attend him. Brakeman William Stone, of 1100 West Washington street, is missing, and it is believed that he is buried under the cars at the bottom of the Vermillion river.

SAINT ANNE'S TOMB.

Ten-Inch Section of Her Body Brought to New York to Work Great Healing Effects.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.-The Rev. Father Tetreau, whose zeal in establishing in the French Canadian Church of St. Jean Baptiste in this city, of which he is pastor, has made its altar shrine sought by afflicted from near and far who believe in the power of the saint to heal, is delighted over the arrival to-day of another authenticated relic. Mgr. Marquis, of Quebec, who has been to Rome and France, and who arrived to-day on La Champagne, brought with him for St. Jean Baptiste the largest portion of the body of the saint which has been yet cut from the remains which are believed to repose in the Basilica of Apt, in the province of Avignon. Since Father Tetreau obtained the tiny particle of the saint's body which is now in the shrine of the church he has been endeavoring to get a much larger piece. Mgr. Marquis and Father Tetreau are great friends, and so it came about when the former went to Rome the latter asked him to intercede with the Archbishop of Avignon for a very considerable portion of the saint's body. The Monseignor was successful in his mission, and there is great rejoicing in the church. "I understand," said Father Tetreau, "that the piece Mgr. Maquis has brought is eight or ten inches long. The piece we now have is a mere fragment, about two inches in length. There will be no fragment of the body as large as this outside of the Basilica of Apt. I would like to say that this gift to us takes on exceptional significance from the fact that the tomb of Si Anne was recently opened in Jerusalem and was found to be empty. This goes a long way in establishing the authenticity of the body now at Apt as being the real remains of St. Anne. It was already established to the satisfaction of the church by tradition, inscriptions, recorded miracles and the political and religious history of France. "The Sultan of Constantinople, after the Crimean war, transferred to France a church in the city of Jerusalem, which was constructed on the very site of the house of St. Anne, with a few contiguous groups. It was there the mother of Jesus was born and there St. Anne lived and died. A house on this site for the White Fathers, founded by Cardinal Lavigerie, for the missions of Africa and the East, was established in 1878. These missionaries, while making excavations, discovered the tomb of the eaint. The tomb was empty, in confirmation of the tradition that Mary Magdalene, Martha and Lazarus, in fleeing from the country, carried the body with them and landed at Marseilles, the capital of Province.

The first section reads as follows: Be it enacted, that the fourteenth section of the act of Jan. 18, 1837, be, and the same is hereby, re-enacted so as to read as follows: That gold and silver bullion brought to the mint for coinage shall be received and coined by the proper officers for the benefit of the depositors; provided, that it shall be lawful to refuse at the mint any deposit of less value than $100, and any bullion so base as to be unshitable for the operations of the mint; and provided, also, that when gold and silver are combined, if either of these metals be in such small proportions that it cannot be separated advantageously, no llowance shall be made to the deposito of the value of such metal." The second section repeals the silver-purchasing clause of the Sherman law of 1890.

Lochren Extends the Time for Pensions, WASHINGTON, Aug. 6 .- Judge Lochren, Pension Commissioner, has extended until Oct. 10, 1893, the period within which pensioners whose pensions have been suspended may make proof of their right to receive them. The Commissioner says in regard to the order: "It has been thought that, because of the persistent misrepresentation by certain classes of newspapers and persons of the action and intention of this bureau, many pensioners may have been misled and discouraged from presenting such proofs as they could furnish, or from asking for a medical examination. I have, therefore, concluded to extend the time within which pensioners who are already notified, but perhaps misled, as I have indicated, may take steps to retain their pensions, if they are in fact entitled to them."

PITTSBURG, Aug. 6 .- Joseph Kidd, an Englishman, narrowly oscaped lynching on Liberty street this afternoon for hanging up by the thumbs his ten-year-old stepson, Harry Armstrong. Frequently the brutal treatment of the children has incensed the neighbors, and the report this afternoon that the boy was hanging by the thumbs in the stable brought a howling mob of fully 500 people to the scene. A rope was torn from an awning, a noose quickly made and a rush for the house, but police appeared and with drawn revolvers held the mob at bay. The little boy was unconscious when cut down, but soon revived. The officers arrested Kidd and with revolvers still in their hands marched him off to the station house.

The buildings were crushed as if they had been made of cardboard, and four persons lost their lives, Mrs. Dennis A. Conley, Miss Agnes Conley, Miss Mattle Conley and James Mosely.
